

Guidelines for publication of articles in the collection

Actual Problems of Theory and History of Art

The deadline for submission of articles is 1 February 2016. Late submissions or texts not conforming to these guidelines will not be considered. Please send the article and all relevant materials by email to: conference@actual-art.org, with the subject line “for the conference”.

I. Text

The text of an article should not exceed 20000 characters including the footnotes. The list of bibliographical references and other accompanying materials are not included. The articles are accepted in Russian or English.

When preparing your article, please follow these technical requirements:

- One space between initials in personal names, e.g.: J. W. H. Smith, not J.W.H. Smith
- Use the en dash (–), not hyphen (-), between consecutive numbers, e.g.: pp. 142–144, not pp. 142-144; 449–437 B.C.; 118–137 A.D. But: Ward-Perkins B., Baden-Baden
- Use the em dash in the text (—)
- In the text spell out whole numbers one through one hundred, or numbers beginning a sentence. All other numbers (centuries, years, page numbers, percentages, lists of objects, measurements and so on) in the text, footnotes and references should be in Arabic numerals, e.g.: Nine 15th century buildings
- Number endings should be put in superscript, e.g.: the 20th century; second half of the 1st century B.C., but: the 1930s
- Put in italics the titles such as that of works of art, literary works etc.
- Use “ ... ” quotation marks or “ ‘ ... ’ ” in case of a double quotation

II. Footnotes and references

The articles can have textual footnotes and bibliographical references.

1. The footnotes should be numbered throughout the text and made automatically. The information on financial support, expressions of gratitude etc. can be put in the first footnote. The footnotes can contain some remarks, discussions, and references to unpublished literary sources or archival data.

In the text: Perotti suggests that in these cases the word γλαυκός means “shining” and refers not only to the leaves, but also to the fruits of the olive tree³.

The footnote 3: The word γλαυκή referring to the sea we shall leave so far without translation, as soon as its meaning will be discussed further.

2. The bibliographical references are made as follows. One should make a numbered list of all quoted titles in alphabetical order. The list of references should be placed at the end of the article on a separate page. It should contain ca. 25-50 references. All the works should be cited using the Roman alphabet. Names and titles in languages using other alphabets should be transliterated according to the Library of Congress system and translated into English. Whenever any of the works from the list is quoted in the text of the article or in a footnote, it is referred to by its number put in square parentheses. If necessary, the number of the book (article) may be followed by the number of page (pages) quoted.

In the text:

It is known that Rubens had to sell part of his collection during the financially difficult years [6, pp. 134–136].

In the references list:

6. Holst N. von. Creators, Collectors, and Connoisseurs; the Anatomy of Artistic Taste from Antiquity to the Present Day. London, Thames and Hudson Publ., 1967. 400 p.

Please see the example in the attachment and also the detailed instructions on how to make the bibliographical references below:

Books, collections of articles, catalogues etc.

Put first the surname and initials of the author(s). In cases of collections of articles, catalogues, editions and translations of the literary sources and other editions without an author, please put first the name and initials of the editor(s), translator(s) etc. followed by (ed.), (eds.), (transl.). Put a dot.

Then put the title of the work in italics. In case of languages using other alphabets than Roman, please put first the transliteration, then the translation of the title in parentheses. If necessary, add vol. I etc. after a comma, in italics. Put a dot.

Then put the place of publication (the name of the city and the name of the editorial house followed by the abbreviation Publ.), comma, the year of publication. Put a dot.

Finally, put the total number of pages in the book.

If citing a work in other language than English, please indicate the language in parentheses at the end of the reference.

e.g.:

Blavatskii V. D. Arkheologiia i istoriia antichnogo mira (Archaeology and history of Classical Antiquity). Moscow, Nauka Publ., 1985. 282 p. (in Russian)

Theis L. Flankenräume im mittelbyzantinischen Kirchenbau. Wiesbaden, Reichert Verlag Publ., 2005. 216 p. (in German).

Works of Art from the 4th to 15th Century in the Collection of Moscow Kremlin Museums: Catalogue)*. Moscow, Pinakoteka Publ., 2013. 608 p. (in Russian).
Ingamells J.; Edgcumbe J. (eds.). The Letters of Sir Joshua Reynolds. New Haven — London, Yale University Press Publ., 2000. 290 p.

Articles

Put first the surname and initials of the author(s).

Then put the title of the article. In case of languages using other alphabets than Roman, please give only the translation of the title.

Then put the name of the periodical or the collection of articles in italics. In case of languages using other alphabets than Roman, please put first the transliteration, then the translation of the title in parentheses.

In case of collection of articles or other non-periodical edition there follow a dot and then the place and the year of publication, the pages cited (pp.).

In case of a periodical edition, there follow a comma, the year of publication, the volume and the number of the periodical (if necessary), the pages cited (pp.). Please note that only English abbreviations of vol. and no. and only Arabic numbers may be used.

If citing a work in other language than English, please indicate the language in parentheses at the end of the reference.

e.g.:

III. Illustrations

The article may be accompanied by 1-3 color plates and 1-5 black and white illustrations, drawings or schemes.

All illustrations in electronic format (JPG or TIF) should have minimal resolution 300 dpi and minimal width 120 mm. Callouts for color plates (Pl. 1, Pl. 2) and black and white illustrations (Fig. 1, Fig. 2) should appear in the text in sequential order and accompanying illustrations should follow the same sequence. Please do not use Fig. 1a, 1b, 1c.

Please make a separate file with lists of plates and black and white illustrations.

The captions:

Number of the plate or illustration. Author of the work of art. Name of the work of art. Date. Place (collection, city or country), e.g.:

Pl. 2. Louis Tocqué. Portrait of I. I. Shuvalov. 1756–1758. The State Hermitage, Saint-Petersburg.

In order to publish any illustrations the authors should fill in the license agreement available online <http://actual-art.spbu.ru/en/publications/for-authors/license-agreement.html> and send us a scan of the signed copy together with the article and all the accompanying materials. This is to make sure that the publication will not violate the rights of any third party. It is the author's concern to provide the copyright for the images he or she intends to publish. This also refers to the scans made from photographs in other editions: the authors should provide the permission to publish these images from the copyright holders.

As soon as the main aim of our edition is publication of the conference materials, extensive illustrative materials cannot be published. Upon the submission of the articles, the editorial board will decide, whether it is possible to publish all the illustrations provided by the authors. Whenever the article cannot be published without some or all illustrations provided by the author, please write about it when submitting your article.
